

Personal and Confidential

May 14, 2014

Dr. Robert W. Buckingham
Executive Director
School of Public Health

Dear Dr. Buckingham:

I have become aware of a document entitled 'The Silence of the Deans' and attachments, the contents of which demonstrates that your relationship with the University of Saskatchewan is irreparably damaged. I write to advise you that you have breached your employment contract with the university and your employment as Executive Director, School of Public Health and Full Professor in the School of Public Health is terminated immediately, for just cause for the following reasons:

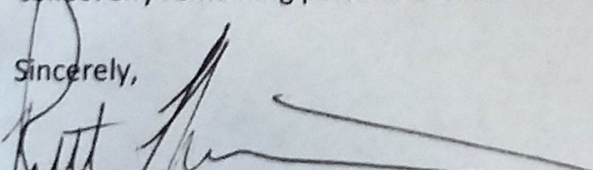

- Your statements contained in the above-mentioned document is a violation of the employment contract in its entirety, and specifically the confidentiality clause contained in your letter of offer dated April 30, 2009. By accepting the letter of offer you agreed that you would not release or divulge confidential or proprietary information with which you are entrusted.
- In publicly challenging the directions given to you by both the president of the university, and the provost, you have demonstrated egregious conduct and insubordination and have destroyed your relationship with the senior leadership team of the University.
- By broadly distributing the above-mentioned document, you have damaged the reputation of the university, the president, and the school, and have damaged the university's relationship with key stakeholders and partners, including the public, the government and your university colleagues.
- By your conduct you have violated your employment contract, you have breached the trust given to you in your role and you failed to demonstrate integrity and ethical conduct which are required competencies of your position.

This letter is also to advise you that the administrative leave scheduled to begin July 1, 2014 is hereby revoked and that all commitments made in the letter of April 15, 2014 are null and void.

You will receive your final pay on May 30, 2014, as per the normal payroll cycle. You are to leave campus immediately and are not to return to your office, the School of Public Health or the university. All benefits and pension cease as of today.

Please contact Tracy Thornton, Senior Analyst, Human Resources at 966-2166 to make arrangements for the return of university equipment and your office keys, as well as to arrange a time that is appropriate to collect any remaining personal effects.

Sincerely,

Brett Fairbairn

Provost and Vice-President Academic
