

This is synthetic report body text on page 1, used only to validate that running headers and footers are correctly identified as repeated boilerplate and removed, while this paragraph itself is preserved.

A second synthetic paragraph specific to page 1 follows, continuing to provide realistic body content for the reading-order reassembly logic to work with across several report pages with genuinely distinct wording.

This is synthetic report body text on page 2, used only to validate that running headers and footers are correctly identified as repeated boilerplate and removed, while this paragraph itself is preserved.

A second synthetic paragraph specific to page 2 follows, continuing to provide realistic body content for the reading-order reassembly logic to work with across several report pages with genuinely distinct wording.

This is synthetic report body text on page 3, used only to validate that running headers and footers are correctly identified as repeated boilerplate and removed, while this paragraph itself is preserved.

A second synthetic paragraph specific to page 3 follows, continuing to provide realistic body content for the reading-order reassembly logic to work with across several report pages with genuinely distinct wording.