

This is the left column of a synthetic two column body used to validate that the pipeline reassembles genuine side by side columns correctly, reading the entire left column before moving to the right column, rather than interleaving lines from both columns together.

This is the right column of the same synthetic two column body, containing entirely different placeholder content so that any interleaving with the left column would be immediately obvious in the reassembled output text.