

Controversial University of Lethbridge professor has suspension lifted

By Joe Scarpelli Global News

<https://globalnews.ca/news/3878326/controversial-university-of-lethbridge-professor-has-suspension-lifted/>

WATCH: Controversial University of Lethbridge professor Dr. Anthony Hall returned to work on Thursday after being accused of spreading conspiracy theories. Joe Scarpelli reports.

A controversial University of Lethbridge professor returned to work on Thursday after being suspended for spreading conspiracy theories.

Dr. Anthony Hall was suspended without pay in October of 2016 following comments he made online suggesting there was a Zionist connection to the 9/11 attacks, and that the events of the Holocaust should be up for debate.

READ MORE: Alberta professor suspended without pay after anti-Semitic content posted to his Facebook page

The university's board of governors and faculty association did not grant interview requests because of legal issues at play. Instead, they issued a joint statement regarding Dr. Hall's return to the classroom.

"The Board of Governors of the University of Lethbridge and the University of Lethbridge Faculty Association have agreed that the outstanding issues that have been raised concerning Dr. Anthony Hall will be addressed in the context of the faculty handbook. As a result, the suspension imposed on Dr. Hall has been lifted and he has returned back to work at the University," the statement said. "The parties will be fully participating in the agreed upon processes in the faculty handbook to investigate and address the outstanding issues."

READ MORE: Human rights complaint filed against controversial University of Lethbridge professor

Two months after Hall was suspended, the university filed a complaint against him to the Alberta Human Rights Commission over comments Jewish groups have called anti-Semitic.

Hall's pay was reinstated at the time, citing the potential length of the complaint process.

Global News spoke to the commission on Thursday but, due to privacy issues, no information on the status of the case was provided.

Hall has spent over two and a half decades at the U of L, teaching Native American studies, liberal education and globalization.